DETAILED ACTION

Election/Restrictions

1. Restriction to one of the following inventions is required under 35 U.S.C.

121:

- I. Claims 1-9 are drawn to a roll-like printing paper, classified in class 400, subclass 594.
- II. Claims 10-14, drawn to a video printer including a detection portion, classified in class 101, subclass 483.
- III. Claims 15 & 16, drawn to a method of detecting a remaining quantity of printer paper, classified in class 400, subclass 703.

2. The inventions are distinct, each from the other because of the following reasons:

Inventions II and I are related as combination and subcombination.

Inventions in this relationship are distinct if it can be shown that (1) the combination as claimed does not require the particulars of the subcombination as claimed for patentability, and (2) that the subcombination has utility by itself or in other combinations (MPEP § 806.05(c)). In the instant case, the combination as claimed does not require the particulars of the subcombination as claimed because the a video printer in group II does not require the use of roll-like paper wound around a paper spool containing a detection portion in group I to be operative. The subcombination has separate utility such as for a tape printer.

Inventions III and I are related as combination and subcombination.

Inventions in this relationship are distinct if it can be shown that (1) the combination as claimed does not require the particulars of the subcombination as claimed for patentability, and (2) that the subcombination has utility by itself or in other combinations (MPEP § 806.05(c)). In the instant case, the combination as claimed does not require the particulars of the subcombination as claimed because the method of detection as taught by the applicant in group III does not require a roll-like printing paper wound around a spool in group I to be an operative method of teaching. The subcombination has separate utility such as a method of detection in a typewriter, word-processor or thermal printer.

Inventions II and III are related as combination and subcombination.

Inventions in this relationship are distinct if it can be shown that (1) the combination as claimed does not require the particulars of the subcombination as claimed for patentability, and (2) that the subcombination has utility by itself or in other combinations (MPEP § 806.05(c)). In the instant case, the combination as claimed does not require the particulars of the subcombination as claimed because the video printer in group II does not require the method of teaching detection and control in group III to be operative. The subcombination has separate utility such as a method of detection in a typewriter, word-processor or thermal printer.

3. Because these inventions are distinct for the reasons given above and have acquired a separate status in the art as shown by their different classification, restriction for examination purposes as indicated is proper.
4. Applicant is advised that the reply to this requirement to be complete must include an election of the invention to be examined even though the requirement be traversed (37 CFR 1.143).
5. Any inquiry concerning this communication or earlier communications from the examiner should be directed to Darius N. Cone whose telephone number is (703) 308-1061. The examiner can normally be reached on 8am - 4:30pm.
